First, a message from many of this week's "Space-Men" the candidates of Tuesday, May 4:

"Vote for me."

Next, a very earnest request that you readers get up and go on Tuesday, and go out there and pull those levers.

At the moment, this election seems planned to create the most hard feelings among the most people. We haven't a word of admiration for the rumor-mongers among them.

We honestly do think that every registered voter is ready to vote Tuesday.

All we urge is—don't let the baby's indisposition, the questionable market, the myriad details of business keep you away from the polls.

Go and vote.

Vote the way you believe.

Then the word "democracy" will remain a fact, not a political phrase.

WASHINGTON NEWSLETTER

By Sen. George Smathers

WASHINGTON — It will be recalled that when General Jim Van Fleet was retired, I protested the failure of the Defense Department to place him in a strategic position where his valuable, training and experience would aid the resistance to world communist aggression. Gen. Van Fleet, instead of returning to Florida, has been kept busy on special missions.

I talked to him this week as he prepared to fly to the Far East again and it is gratifying to be reassured that we are "on the same team"—that is in advocacy of a "Pan-Asian" mutual defense alliance to bring together all the "free" countries of southeast Asia to fight against the Reds.

Asians should man the front lines in the fight against communism in Asia and we should do all that is necessary to encourage them to do so. The key to freedom in Asia is the hope of independence which we have instilled and honored by the population of the country who must make any successful fight. The way to victory is through mutual assistance, coupled with a fighting spirit.

It is also high time we stopped fighting by ground rules laid down by the Communists, refusing to use the modern weapons we have which they fear.

RED TIDE RELIEF: We are nearer than ever before to being equipped to fight the "Red Tide," which has killed millions of fish in the Gulf. Congress appears to be in a mood to pass a bill brought out by the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of which I am a member. This measure will allow the Secretary of Interior a multi-million dollar fund (from duties collected on fish imports) to carry on research and bolster the entire industry.

ART STUDENTS' WORK TO NORTON ON 9

Mrs. Henry O' Earwood, chairman of the Norton on 9 Art Show, has been engaged to judge the work of the students. The show, being staged by the Harry S. Truman library fund committee, Knowing he was going to be in town on that date, Jack Bryan, who works for Congressmen Bill Matthews, asked Mr. Truman to speak at the Burros Club luncheon. Jack is president of the club—an organization of male secretaries to Democratic Congressmen. Mr. Truman said he was sorry—"Some other time."

ANOTHER STAMP: As we predicted, Congressman Charlie Bennett didn't get credit for his idea creating the new 8¢ overseas postage stamp. The new two-cent stamp carries the slogan for the first time on any American stamp, "In God We Trust." Even though Charlie wasn't given the credit due him, he has made a suggestion to the Post Office Department. He proposes that the 15¢ and 25¢ overseas airmail stamps carry a facsimile of the famous memorial of Abraham Lincoln with the words, "With Malice Towards None." Bennett feels that this is another way to promote good will and better understanding between the United States and the other countries of the world.

WHITE HOUSE TOO?: Congressman Dwight Rogers has introduced a bill against picketing the White House. Now, he finds the three foreign embassies in the District of Columbia have all foreign embassies here. He thinks if the embassies are protected, certainly the White House should be too. He'll get a chance to argue for his bill before the District Committee next week.

Mrs. Harold Rosenberg of Canal Point was called to Illinois because of her parents having suffered injuries in an automobile accident.

BY SCHATZI

Reaffirmation is a wonderful thing.

This week, after a traumatic experience on Sunday, my belief that there's no accounting for what was reaffirmed.

Like any good dog, I was observing Sunday as a day of rest.

The only sound in the out-door world was I lay on my porch chair and scratched myself, were the usual—children hitting each other, cars speeding down the street, cats fighting in the alley.

The bosses were reading the papers—everything was peaceful. I dozed off.

That's where I made my mistake.

Coming out of a sunny haze, I was lifted bodily into Boss No. 1's lap. In one hand she clutched me—in the other, an ashtray full of green gooey stuff and a small red plastic handle with bristles sticking out of it.

I saw that feeling you get that suddenly something's gone wrong?

I had it.

Without, mind you, the first reassuring word, the boss dipped this brush-like object into the green goo and had at it.

She wedged my mouth open and rammed the thing against my teeth and started scrubbing. This happened six different times, and whatever "chlorophyll" is, I hate it.

Then my head was dunked in a bowl of water and I spit and spit and spit before the green goo finally got off my teeth.

They tell me people do this sort of thing as much as three times daily—not brush dogs' teeth, brush their own teeth, that is.

Next time anybody tries that again, I'm going to jump off the porch and run down the street foaming green suds at the mouth.

Wait'll the people who gave me my rabies shot see that!

HOSPITAL PUBLIC RESPONSIBILITY

"Your local hospital is of the people, by the people, and for the people," Everglades Memorial Hospital Director Harry C. Wair told the Pahokee Woman's Club meeting Wednesday as he outlined why the public is considered in the administration of the hospital.

He is "sick and tired," Wair said of health care, "misframed and uncharmed facts" about the hospital, without having had anyone come to the administration to find out if a "fact" is truth or untruth.

Introduced by Mrs. R. J. Schatzki, Wair told the chapter development of the hospital and how the hospital dollar is spent. The speaker stated that it cost $120,000 per year to operate the hospital and that the hospital cost of operating can't be less than $150,000, but that the patient is charged 7 cents per hour, and the money derived is used to pay the present deficit. He said it was up to the public whether the hospital would be closed.

Mrs. Norman A. Kennedy was nominated president of the club; Mrs. James W. Wilson, first vice president; Mrs. Mildred Schoeppel, second vice president; Mrs. Robert C. Hutton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Blake Dunson, treasurer; Mrs. M. I. Keen, auditor, and Mrs. Don Hillier, parliamentarian. Submitting the names of the officers was Mrs. A. J. Jensen, Mrs. George Arceaneus and Mrs. V. L. Geiger. Installation of officers will be held at a luncheon the last of May with Mrs. J. R. Stutcliffe installing officers.

Officers voted to purchase a new hot water tank for the club building. The following amendments were voted to the constitution and by-laws. Meetings will be conducted on the second Monday of each month instead of second and fourth Tuesdays. Officers will be elected the first meeting in March to take office the second meeting in May. Associate dues were raised from $3 to $5 per year. Expenses for the club will be limited for illness, urgent business and unforeseen emergencies. Members who work and are unable to attend meetings will be requested to take associate membership. All meetings, luncheons, committee, board, meetings, committee and invitational meetings may be used for make up meetings.

Mrs. George Tucker, Mrs. Barwick were luncheon guests. Duke Tucker and Mrs. Sadie Mrs. Don Hillier, president, presided.

ROBSERVATIONS

By BENJAMIN S. ROBERTS

In days of old, when knights were bold . . . they rode forth to battle with the infidel Saracens waving banners displaying signs and words such as "In His Name We Conquer!"

Today our jet fighters might have less poetic but nonetheless significant mottoes painted on the noses of their aircraft.

Certainly during World War II the sign and the saying were linked, almost every fighting craft whether on land or sea or in the air had a Walt Disney device plus a few choice words of wisdom for the enemy. One in particular gave Disney something of a headache. The air station's name in Hawaiian meant dead duck on a rock. Walt had quickly to enliven the duck, the play on words was not conducive to high spirits and good morale.

It is not unusual then for the United States as a government to issue an eight cent red, white and blue airmail stamp bearing its motto, "In God We Trust." Until now this expression has been used only on occasions when the Great Seal is depicted.

Individual states have been prone to give vent to their loyalty on their fears and expectations in terse statements: North Carolina, "To Be Rather Than to Steem"; Utah, appropriately, "where we are living in an era where some good can be derived, some forward step can be taken because of them, let us be grateful that our Government has adopted a high, mighty and purposeful statement to which all men, everywhere, can adhere.

Mottos, slogans, and catch-phrases are not new; they have been easily disseminated today by radio, TV, billboards and match-covers.

If we are living in an era where some good can be derived, some forward step can be taken because of them, let us be grateful that our Government has adopted a high, mighty and purposeful statement to which all men, everywhere, can adhere.

"GROWING UP"
The "growing up" of adolescence period is frequently a freest one. Junior girls who fail to recognize their adolescent changes at this time in their children.

Younger child enters this period, its growing maturity takes on a new approach. Normally dependent on the security, love and confidence of the parents, the adolescent girl seeks to break away so that his own independence may be established. Home, food and clothing are the areas of concern in seeking from parental influence, from being told what and what not to do free choice. This is a normal stage even though they may be considering his parents entirely out of keep with his age.

The adolescent will accept these changes calmly and if proper guidance has been effected in the early years of life, he will be able to do so.
Spontaneity in the child should be encouraged but directed. Enthusiasm should not be curbed but directed.

Security must come from parents and is given through protection, acceptance, affection, guidance, authority and example.

The greatest influence on the home on the child is example. Because the child naturally imitates what he sees, he reflects the environment of his home. Tensions, temper displays, unpleasant feelings are quickly picked up and adopted. On the other hand, if harmony and stability prevail, the child acquires poise and security.

The lack of security and self confidence leads to frustration and trouble. One child may react by overprotection, another by hitting himself, stammering and behavior disturbances which ultimately end in psychosis, rebellion, aggressive behavior and delinquency.

Security can be damaged and destroyed, not by non-acceptance, negating, nagging, inconsistency, arguing, split authority and bad example, while self-confidence may be impeded by over-protection.

A Real Humanitarian

Leroy Collins can give Charley Johns cards and spades at this "poor folks" business and beat him seven ways to breakfast, although Collins hasn't been pitching his campaign on the demagogic level that Johns has adopted.

Now that Johns has "officially" opened the campaign for governor which he actually launched the day he took over from Dan McCarty, he is making much of his humble background as a "poor boy" and railroad conductor before he got himself well fixed in the insurance business. This, he says, causes his heart to bleed for the poor folks and moves him to espouse a "humanitarian" program of government—which, he claims, distinguishes him from his opponents.

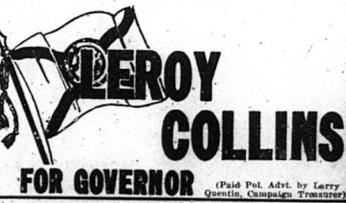

Well, Collins was every bit as poor a "poor boy" as Johns ever was, and he has risen a good bit higher than Johns did. When Collins graduated from high school he like Johns, was too poor to go to college. He got a job as a grocery clerk, sweeping the floor. At this time he managed to save $500 for a year in business school. On the strength of that schooling he got a job as a bank teller. That was another poorly paid job but he saved enough at that to go to Cumberland University and earn a law degree. He started practice in Tallahassee at the depth of the depression and at one time eked out his meager income with part-time WPA employment as an indexer. Collins knows as well as Johns what it is to be poor, if that's a qualification for governor.

Speaking at Jacksonville Tuesday night, Johns gave this illustration of how his "humanitarian" philosophy supposedly distinguished him from Collins: "For example, one of my opponents criticized me because I gave small pay raises to the lowest paid workers for the road department—men who were trying to support and rear families on $150 a month."

The truth is that Collins never criticized the granting of this pay raise. What Collins did criticize was the sending of a letter over Johns' signature to the state workers who got this pay increase in which Johns took personal credit for it, as if it were instead of the taxpayers who were providing it, and in which he hinted that they could expect another raise if he were returned to office—blatant campaign propaganda. Johns obviously can't grasp the point of ethics Collins raised.

But to get right down to the matter of "humanitarian" government on which Johns presumes to stake out an exclusive claim, Collins' record during the 20-year span of his distinguished career in the House and Senate makes Johns look silly. Here are some of the "humanitarian" measures which Collins sponsored during his career—not just voted for, but took a leading part in putting through: the Minimum Foundation Program of 1947 which has raised the whole level of public school education in this state, including teachers' salaries (and which Johns, by the way, voted against); the civil service system for public employees enacted in 1937 and the state employees' retirement fund passed the same year; the first old age assistance program in 1935; the $500 tax exemptions for widows with dependents and disabled veterans; measures to protect adopted children; authorization for welfare recipients to keep their own food and sheep receive their benefits; the legislation passed in 1935 providing financial aid to those totally disabled; bringing day laborers into the state retirement system; the 1935 measure that gave women equal property rights with men; and the "humanitarian" list also well include Collins' anti-Klan bill of 1951 outlawing the wearing of masks and burning of crosses—which Johns also voted against.

When it comes to handing out pay raises at election time, Johns is "humanitarian" all right. But when he claims a monopoly on a "humanitarian" philosophy of government as he did at Jacksonville, he looks downright ridiculous alongside Leroy Collins and his solid record of achievements.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE GROUP, Canal Point

How the selflessness and egoism which would impede man's spiritual progress can be overcome through obedience to God, divine Love, will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

The Lesson-Sermon entitled "Everlasting Punishment" includes the following verses of the Bible:

"As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten: be zealous therefore, and repent. Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me" (Revelation 3, 19, 20).

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, the following passage will also be read:

"In patient obedience to a patient God, let us labor to dissolve with the universal solvent of Love the adamant of error, self-will, self-justification, and self-love; and so others against spirit and law is the law of sin and death" (242:15).

The Golden Text is from Job: "Surely it is meet to be said unto God, I have borne chastisement, I will not offend any more" (34:31).

Horsepower Replaces Manpower on Farms to Move Many Heavy Loads

Showed above are four of the many methods used to move produce on the farm. Although they do not cover the field by any means, they illustrate some of the ways in which horsepower is replacing manpower in handling many of those "back-breaking" farm jobs.

By IRA MILLER

Farm Electrification Bureau

In the panel at the upper left, an electric motor is used to move corn into a tempering crib. This operation may be more popular than ever this year because of a shortage of permanent labor on farms and the prospect of another bumper crop. The carry-over of corn this year may reach 900,000,000 bushels. At the top right, a tractor with a trailer and an inclined plane elevator makes the combined use of a wagon loader and an inclined plane elevator to move newly harvested grain into a storage building for forced air drying.

At the lower left we see a horizontal conveyor belt being used to move the bales are dumped on the conveyor at the mow door after being hoisted up by means of an inclined plane elevator. The conveyor then carries the farmer's wagon. In the mow, the conveyor is shifted around until all the bales are located where desired. Boards are angled along the bed of the conveyor to "bump" of the bales on either side. These guide boards are particularly useful for controlling the direction of "fall" for each approaching bale. The picture at the lower right shows another way of handling bales at the time for stacking them on the ground floor of a pole barn. A small electric motor is used to move the "lifting" bales to various heights.

Many farmers have gone far beyond the equipment shown here. Some move their feed by conveyor belt; others dry their grain in local lots; others "sugar" grain out of storage bins for feed carts, grinders and mixers. Automatic feed carts can move chickens or pigs to cattle; other types of conveyors remove manure from barn gutters. There seems no end to the imagination of the farmer in his power to move or remove food products and waste materials much more easily, quickly, conveniently and at less cost than their grandfathers would have thought possible.

Small Town Break In New Bill

WASHINGTON — Sen. George Smathers has proposed legislation in the Congress to give the small town in the United States the luxuries of community facilities enjoyed by the big brother cities.

Smathers' bill would bring within reach of these towns the modern systems of water and gas supply, and sewage disposal many of them now beat alone.

Under his plan, only communities of less than 10,000 would benefit in a program of government backing for construction or modernization of these facilities. The administration, a government agency would insure municipal bond issues.

No Government Money

This program does not involve grants or direct use of government money," Smathers emphasized. "It would pledge the faith of the government to help these citizens to help themselves. In my opinion, there is nothing so 'American' as the small town and their economic stability and well being are vital to the entire nation."

Florida, according to the 1950 census, has only 29 cities of 10,000 population or more, while there are hundreds of small towns of varying sizes.

130 SPECIAL CENSUSES
IN U.S. LAST YEAR

SARASOTA — One hundred and thirty special federal censuses were conducted in the United States last year, according to Supervisor L. S. Bullington of the U. S. Census Bureau's district office here. Altogether, 188 such censuses have been taken in the country since the decennial count in 1950.

The chief reason for these special censuses is to establish more population statistics for elements of tax funds collected by the states and distributed to local communities on a per capita basis. In other instances, special censuses are taken because of municipal annexations or in connection with the preparation of election figures for municipalities which are incorporated from unorganized areas after an official census has been taken. In the field of private business, news papers, railroads, banks and trade associations find new compilation bases useful in setting up revised circulation and advertising rates, and quotas, promotional work and related activities.

Municipal or town officials must make application regarding costs and procedures of special censuses from Bullington at the Census Bureau's district office at Sarasota.
